Engaged Writers And Dynamic Disciplines: Research On The Academic Writing Life

Synopsis

An exceptionally thoughtful investigation of writing in the academic disciplines—one of the best I have ever read. A smart and elegant book. - Mike Rose, author of Lives on the Boundary

How do faculty across the disciplines define the qualities of good writing? What assumptions underlie their writing assignments? How do students learn to write within their majors? Meet teacher expectations? Acquire proficiency in academic genres? Chris Thaiss and Terry Myers Zawacki sought answers to these important questions in their landmark, four-year, crossdisciplinary study of faculty and students from a wide range of majors. Their results will change your approach to teaching writing. Thoroughly researched and incisively written, Engaged Writers and Dynamic Disciplines shows faculty and student writers taking risks with form and ideas as they weigh the demands of writing in the academy with their own passions for learning and self-expression. Thaiss and Zawacki demonstrate that academic disciplines are dynamic spaces that accommodate a variety of alternative styles and visions, even as they respect careful, systematic research. Engaged Writers and Dynamic Disciplines illuminates disciplinary assumptions, expectations, and writing practices. Its insights and conclusions will inform everyone who teaches writing or administers a WAC program.

A quintessential guide to understanding how to support faculty writing and appreciate its various semblances. EWDD presents an in-depth analysis of the implications, impact, and imperative of faculty productivity, including a discussion of how productive faculty teach and what their productivity means to supporting student writers. EWDD provides theoretical underpinnings and some guidance in implementing systems to establish a culture of faculty writing.

This book was required for my English 102 class. But I would never read on my own, it even for research purposes. It is the driest book I have ever read. And I consider myself a book-worm.
